

Adrian F. Castillo
Chief of Staff
greater:SATX Regional Economic Partnership

Adrian Castillo serves as Chief of Staff at greater:SATX, the private-public partnership leading economic development across the 10-county Greater San Antonio region. At greater:SATX, he advises the President and CEO, advances executive priorities, strengthens board and stakeholder engagement, and drives organizational alignment around initiatives that enhance regional competitiveness and long-term growth.

A native San Antonian, Adrian works at the intersection of strategy, communications, and civic engagement. He translates complex priorities into clear strategies, compelling messages, and coordinated action that support greater:SATX's efforts to position San Antonio as a globally competitive destination for business investment, create quality jobs, and expand economic opportunity for residents.

Before becoming Chief of Staff, Adrian led public affairs and communications for greater:SATX, directing messaging, public engagement, and advocacy efforts that built coalitions among business, government, and community partners. Earlier in his career, he managed global trade initiatives and partnered with U.S. government agencies on international trade missions that promoted American industry abroad and strengthened relationships with global partners. A dedicated community builder, Adrian also led a university program examining the drivers of poverty in Houston's Third Ward, including affordable housing, community health, food security, and access to education. He holds undergraduate degrees in Middle Eastern studies and political science and completed graduate coursework in international development, providing a global perspective on how economic and social systems shape local communities.
