Class Descriptions: Strength

Strength classes are full-body workouts designed to help improve muscular strength

- Strength & Balance—classes are interval based with strength training and basic movements to improve balance and mobility
- Strength & Conditioning—classes will include a variety of bodyweight and weighted exercises designed to increase full body muscular strength and endurance.
- Barbell Pump—is a full-body strength workout using barbells and weights to tone and build muscle. The class focuses on high-rep movement that boost strength and endurance.
- Boot Camp—classes are moderate to high intensity and designed to build strength and cardio fitness levels.
- Circuit Training—classes are moderate intensity and include a variety of exercises geared towards improving total body fitness. An exercise “Circuit” refers to one completion of all prescribed exercises in the program.
- Body Weight Training—is full-body workout that uses your own body as resistance to build strength, improve endurance, and increase mobility—no equipment needed.
- Interval Training—involves various intensities of exercise, going from short periods of high intensity work to longer periods of lower intensity work. These sets of high to low intensity exercise are repeated several times to complete the training session.
- Total Body Toning—classes include a variety of strength training and flexibility movements to get a great full body workout.
- Bike Boot Camp—is a fusion class that combines cardio and strength training. Participants will alternate between cardio intervals on the bike and strength training exercises.
- Tabata Kickboxing—is a high-intensity interval training class that consists of 20-second work intervals followed by 10-second recovery intervals for eight cycles. Exercises will include striking heavy bags.
- SPEAR Training—(Strength, Power, Endurance and Resistance) training classes follow the CrossFit methodology and are constantly varied functional movements performed at high intensity.
- Mommy & Me Pilates—focuses on improving strength, flexibility, and body awareness through controlled movements and stretches for adults and children.
